REPORT NO. [REDACTED]

1. The failure of the Communist-inspired 28 February Incident in Taiwan in 1947, attributed by the Taiwanese Communists to their lack of a united front, caused them to establish the Taiwan People's League. This later became the Democratic League for Taiwan Autonomy. HSIEN Hsueh-hung, the head of the League, who resides permanently in Peiping, conducts a daily propaganda program heard in Peiping, Tientsin, and Shanghai.
2. The preparatory committee for the League was established on 12 November 1947. The League aims at unifying the people of Taiwan in a struggle for Taiwanese autonomy and in joining the people of China in the building of a democratic coalition government. The close relationship to the Chinese Communist Party is shown by the fact that the Democratic League for Taiwan Autonomy was given a seat in the Communist Political Consultative Conference.
3. The draft platform of the League contained the following principles:
 - a. Establishment of a democratic coalition government and an independent, peaceful, democratic, powerful, and rich new China.
 - b. Protection of human rights and basic freedoms concerning thought, speech, belief, and public gatherings.
 - c. Delegation of supreme local autonomy to provincial authorities.
 - d. Enforcement of local autonomy and of direct election.
 - e. Establishment of a provincial council and hsien and city councils, which will exercise political power on behalf of the people.
 - f. Enforcement of the general election system.
 - g. Assurance of an independent judiciary system.
